Biography

Cameron Weber teaches economics at St. John's University in Queens, New York. Cameron received a dual doctorate in economics and history from the New School for Social Research in August 2015, where he also helped create the field of "cultural economics" and has recently contributed to Design and the Creation of Value by John Heskett (Bloomsbury 2017, forthcoming). Prior to fulltime economics and historical studies, Cameron was a diplomat in the US foreign service and chief of financial oversight at the US State Department in Washington, DC. Cameron is also a community producer with Brooklyn Free Speech cable television and produces and hosts the Hardfire television show on political economy issues.
